HAS SEARCEY CONFESSED!

The Mysterious Mission on Which He Accompanies Officers.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 23.—The bandit C. J. Scarcey is neither confined in Stafford county jail or in the Fredericksburg prison, but last night was taken to the bridge tender's house at Acquai Creek, near the scene of the hold up.

He is in the custody of Robert A. Pinkerton, armed with a Winchester; Sergeant Edrington and Commonwealth Attornev W. Seymour White. The point was reached after miles of detour, and all indications would seem to give support to the belief that Pinkerton and his party are on a hunt for the treasure stolen from the express car and supposed to be buried. Searcey's manner and speech conclusively show that a treaty has been entered into with the authorities.

Searcey was taken from the jail here about noon and placed in a carriage. He was handcuffed to Superintendent Pinkerton. In the vehicle was a basket filled with enough provisions to last the party two days.

Many fruitless efforts were made to elude the reporters who were following close behind. A brief stop was made at Brooks Station, on the R. F. and P. road, and then the ride was resumed to Stafford Court House. While Searcey was sitting in the parlor of the clerk's house the correspondent asked Pinkerton the object of the ex-

"The time is not ripe," he said, "but there will be interesting developments later on." After repeated urgings on this point the party left again without locking up their prisoner in the Stafford jail. In all probability Searcey is taking Pinkerton and his associates to the spot near the Virginia Midland, where it is said thousands stolen from the express car were buried.

An Eye Witness Tells of the Monster Explosion at Rio. BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.-Captain Hudgins. of the coffee bark Dom Pedro II, now in port, gives a graphic description of a dynamite explosion that occurred in Rio a few days prior to Sept. 6, when his vessel sailed for Baltimore. A brief report of the affair was cabled to the Associated Press at the time.

A Brazilian soldier discovered near the English cemetery a subterranean magazine, in which the insurgents of the recent rebellion had concealed a large quantity of gunpowder, cartridges and dynamite shells, which they evidently intended using against the government. The soldier reported his find to the general commanding, and a rough cart, drawn by two mules, was sent to the scene to remove the contents of the hidden magazine to a place of safety. A detachment of soldiers accompanied the cart, and a curious crowd of citizens followed it to the little hill which had been dug out to hold the explo-

A quantity of the shells had been placed in the cart, and a pile of others had been passed out close behind it, when one of the soldiers, while in the act of handling a shell, dropped it among the others. The same second an explosion shook the earth. A sheet of flame shot upward and a cloud of whitish smoke hid everything from view. The vessels in the harbor rocked at their moorings, and the entire city was thrown into wild excitement. Over a ton of dynamite had exploded from the drop-ping of the shell. The soldiers and mules were blown into fragments, and only the iron tires of the cart wheels were found. Over sixty persons were killed.

Uhl. assistant secretary of state, in refusing to issue a passport to him, although he has been voting here a number of years on papers granted by Judge Larremore in the court of common pleas Feb. 21, 1871. Mr. Uhl's ruling was to the effect that the papers were worthless on the ground that the qualification of five years' continuous residence has not been complied with. Mr. Uhl s decision. Rossa says, prevented him from visiting Great Britain, where he had contracted to lecture, and compelled his return to this country. In his complaint to President Cleveland he inquires whether Mr. Uhl is an Englishman, an Orangeman or a member of the A. P. A.

Commander Ballington Booth led in prayer, and theo the Rev. Dr. Emery Bradford, of Montclair, N. J., read an address of welcome to General Booth. Commander Booth then presented his father, the general, with a handsomely framed testimonial from the staff officers. General Booth arose to make his acknowledgments, and a mighty wave of applause swept over the house. The general made a speech, in which he briefly told the history of the army.

"Why did I undertake this work? Because in one part of the east end of London-the population had never been inside a church. I drew the painted woman of the street and the drunkards around me and preached the gospel of Jesus to them. Before then, Christianity was a by word of reproach on their lips.

THE BRIDE AT LIVADIA.

Princess Alix Has Arrived at the Stricken Ruler's Bedside.

MANY PRAYERS FOR HIS RECOVERY

In All Parts of Russia and on All Russian Vessels Petitions Are Unceasingly Ascending to the Throne of Grace-To Hurry the Royal Wedding.

LONDON, Oct. 23.-Today has produced practically nothing to the point in regard. to the situation of the czar. In all the continental capitals and in London there have been streams of callers, officials, dignitaries, aristocrats and humble people, at the Russian embassies. To these, however, little information was vouchsafed, and that little consisted of gloomy forebodings. Prayers and masses are unceasingly offered from St. Petersburg to Vladivostock, from Rome to Buenos Ayres.

The wild rumors reported on Sunday from St. Petersburg were reported yesterday in still wilder forms. From Moscow comes a report that there are people there who insist that the czarowitz has refused. to ascend the throne, and that the czar, in order to compel him to do so, has ordered his immediate marriage to Princess Alix.

(Russia's Next Ruler.)

The Moscovites fear that should the rumors prove true they will have to face the gravest peril possible. While the people crowd the churches to pray for the czar, the fears that the runior has bred give added fervor to their petitions. The question of succession still holds the principal place in the flood of statements, rumors and surmise.

The Cologne Gazette prints a St. Petersburg telegram stating that the czar has given orders for a settlement of the sucession to the imperial council. He has advised that Grand Duke George, his second son, should on account of the state of his health renounce his claim in favor of his brother. Grand Duke Michael, who ught to take the oath as beir presumptive to the throne.

The Berliner Tageblatt publishes a telegram from Livadia asserting that the betrothal of the czarowitz and Princess Alix formally occurred today, and that the marriage will be celebrated tomorrow. This hastening of the ceremony is said to be rendered necessary by the rule of the Romanoff family compelling every heir apparent to marry before ascending the brone, and to proclaim his successor. On this account the proclamation of the nearest magnate, the Grand Duke Michael, as the ultimate heir apparent is generally expocted. Another rule in connection with the accession requires that when the oath of allegiance to a new exar is administered to the troops and odicials an oath of fidelity to the heir apparent must be taken at the same time. Besides the offering of prayer for the recovery of the ezar in all the churches, the Holy Synod has ordered that there be prayers for the same offered in the army and navy and on board the vessels of the Russian Paciific and Mediterranean squadrons. Archbishop Moghileff has ordered prayers in all the Catholic churches.

Prince Mestehersky's Citizen is the first newspaper to break the dead silence inflicted on the press by the censors concerning the expression of grief because of the ezar's illness. That paper gives a graphic description of the solemn and pathetic service of prayer within the ancient walls of the Cathedral of the Assumption in the Kremlin at Moscow. It adds that these prayers will be continued daily until God listens to the Muscovite supplications.

It is announced from Sofla, Bulgaria, that no special services have been held there for the recovery of the czar. The clergy appear to have been instructed from headquarters.

A dispatch from Paris states that Baron Von Mohrenheim, Russian ambassador to France, last evening received a bulletin reporting that there had been a sensible improvement in the condition of Emperor Alexander.

Princess Alix arrived at Livadia last night. The czarina accompanied her to the chapel of the eastie, where both prayed carnestly that the life of the ezar be spared. The czarina looked careworn, but she walked without assistance. All the reports stating that her majesty has been stricken with paralysis or apoplexy are un-

Yesterday's bulletin from Livadia is of the same unsatisfactory nature as the former ones. Everybody is surprised that no mention is made of the pulse and temper iture; in short, there is no clew as to what the disease from which the czar is suffering actually is. It is runnored that an operation is contemplated. Another story has it that the malady is expected to reach a crisis within the next day or two.

IAMES PYLE, New York

WILSON TALKS.

Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, III. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a protty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, as to what must be the best thing to give that coind the right kind of intentgence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what I do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his see and what my father did not know how to tell me or also self when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time. Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess,

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy ank secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world. I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance or a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end-and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courses or a broader brein them their fellows, but I am the state of the lives of or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but 1 am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its

THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE.

"Why not, if it proves cheaper and better to make the same materials than to grow them? The first steps, and you know that it is always the first step that costs, have already been taken. I is many years, you must remember, since I first succeeded in making fat di rect from its elements. I do not say that we shall give you artificial beefsteaks at once, nor do I say that we shall ever give you the beefsteak as we now obtain and cook it. We shall give you the same identical food, however, chemically, digestively and nutritively speaking. Its form will differ, because it will probably be a tablet. But it will be a tablet of any color and shape that is desired, and will, I think, entirely satisfy the epicurean senses of the future, for you must remember that the beefsteak of today is not the most perfect of pictures either in color or composition.

"Tea and coffce could now be made artificially," continued the professor, "if the necessity should arise, or the commercial opportunity, through the necessary supplementary mechanical inventions, had been reached."

"And what about tobacco?" "The essential principle of tobacco, as you know, is nicotine. We have ob tained pure nicotine, whose chemical constitution is perfectly understood, by treating salomine, a natural glucoside, with hydrogen. Synthetic chemistry has not made nicotine directly as yet, but it has very nearly reached it, and the laboratory manufacture of nicotine may fairly be expected at any time. Conine, the poisonous principle of hemlock, has been made synthetically, and it is so close in its constitution to nicotine and so clearly of the same class that only its transformation into nicotine remains to be mustered, a problem which is not very difficult when compared with others which have been solved. The parent compound from which the nicotine of commerce will be made exists largely in coal tar."-From an Interview With Professor Berthelot, the French Chemist, in McClure's Magazine.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

His Fondness For Little Children Gets Him

Into Trouble. "I always was fond of little children," said the retired burglar, "and once I served a term on that account. I had gone into a house in the western part of the state and rummaged about down stairs, and finally got up and got into a room where there was a man and his wife and a little baby, all asleep. The baby was in a cradle that stood at the foot of the bed. Not far from the cradle, standing against the wall, was the bureau. I transferred whatever there was of value in the bureau, and then I turned to the baby. I couldn't help it. I turned my light on the kid to look at him, and it woke him up. He stared at me a little, and then he began to smile and double up his fists at me.

"Well, he looked so funny that I chucked him under the chin, and that seemed to tickle him immensely. He threw up his legs and his arms and laughed more'n ever and tried to say something, but all he could say was 'Goo-o-o,' but that was enough. You have heard of women so tired you could not wake 'em up firing a cannon in the next room that would wake up in a minute if the baby turned in its cradle? Well, when this baby said 'Goo-o-o,' its mother not only woke up instantly, but she began to get up before she was fairly awake, and all the time she was looking toward the cradle, and she saw the light long before I could douse it. Then she screamed, and I made a great break for the door.

"But the man got there before I did, and besides being very quick he was very ablebodied and not the least bit afraid. In fact, he was a better man than I was, and the upshot of this business was that I got four years and six months just for stopping to chuck a lit-tle shaver under the chin."—New York

Mrs. Lyne-Stephens, whose funeral in England took place recently, had so completely outlived her celebrity that she does not find a place in "Men and Women of the Time," yet when the century was young the name of Mile. TREASURER OF NEW YORK STATE.

Gives More Evidence of the Unequalled Worth of anounces that it has removed the quarantine from the premises on Ball and Thompson streets in which there Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Colvin Had Suffered from a Nervous Complaint with which Many are Afflicted. He Tried the Remedy that Makes People Well, and His Experience was Like that of Thousands of Others.

tion of purely financial responsibility to which it is possible for a citizen of this country to be elected.

In many respects the office is second only to that of the great United States official whose secretary himself has just publicly rec ommended Paine's celery compound.

Now there comes a letter of the same character from Treasure Colvio.

In the history of the most remarkable remedy this century has yet seen the fact that the ablest and most influential persons in the country and the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's celery compound, is very significant. The fact that today this remedy is more widely recommended, by grateful people in every walk of life, than all the other ramedles in the world together, is not astonishing. It makes people well!

There have appeared recently published testimonials of Mr. Carlisle's private secretary, of ex-Minister to Austria Francis, of Mayor McShane of Montreal, of Miss Mabel Jenness, of President Cook of the National teachers' association, of Gen. Macauley and of scores of others equally responsible women and men. The 'plain people' by thousands in every state in the union have testified to the merits of the compound.

Hon Addison B. Colvin, whose likeness is given above, who was elected treasurer of New York State last fall, was born in 1858 in Glens Falls, N. Y., where he was educated in the public schools, and where he has since resided. His successul career is known to all well-informed persons.

Writing to the proprietors of Paine's celery compound on July 12 last he said: "I beg to advise you that three or four years ago, when I was suffering serverely with nervous difficulty, caused by too close attention to business, I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and to use any other remedy for that dif-ficulty. Very sincerly yours,

A. B. Colvin, "State Treasurer,

heed this truth, that the most cruel | means, ta-kmaker in the world is a man's self when he is ambitious and, moreover, successful.

No eight-hour or ten-hour laws have ever been devised to protect such hard-worked, overworked men against themselves.

Very many are tied to their office desks, bantover books and papers for hours, in utter defiance of the simplest requirements of health. The steady drain on the store of nervous energy at length shows itself in repeated headaches, neuralgia twinges, rheumatic pains, unrefreshing sleep and a lowness of spirits and strength.

In all these cases there is urgent need of restoring the nervous vigor that has been beedlessly equandered. Just why the great body of really capable physicians have had the greatest confidence from the first in ordering Paine's celery compound in these cases of reduced nerve vigor and bodily strength is not only because of the immediate good results that follow, but because this great modern remedy is prepared from the formula of the ablest reputed scientist and practitioner in medicine. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL D. of Dartmouth college.

There are hundreds of men and women successful in their work for every one who is successful in keeping well. In many instances a fraction of the care and earnestness with which they attend to their business If devoted to getting well would make them strong and well.

To quickly fill the shrunken arterles and veins with ruddy blood and to refresh the exhausted nerves is the task that Paine's celery compound at once sets at work to accomplish. It takes but a short time the benefit to me was considerable; great nerve food to call a halt to agent, Paine's celery compound.

Mr. Colvin, the treasurer of New in fact, since having taken the com-York state, holds the highest posi- pound. I have not been called upon the body: to dyspepsis, liver, kidney and heart difficulties and to nervous weakness.

It is perhaps, vague to most persons' minds just what "regulating Every hard-working person should and strengthening the nerves" really

> No parts of the body undergo such rapid changes as the nervous tissues. After exertion the brain and nerves demand the promptest repair possible The proper material must be speedily and richly brought by the blood to ensure the healthy working of these delicate parts. It is when the vigor of the body is so reduced that the nervous tissues cannot extract these needed elements from the blood, and when the pale, watery blood can furnish but a scanty supply of building material, that the strength fails, sleep becomes broken and unfreshing, depression seize the mind and a general feeling of ill-being is the sure forerunner of the breakdown of some special organ, liver, kidneys, heart, brain or stomach. Paine's celery compound regulates and strengthens the nerves, which govern and give tone to every part of the body.

The tiniest branchings of the nerves everywhere accompany and work in harmony with the marvelous network of blood vessels, so that wherever a pin prick starts a drop of blood asharp pain tells that a nerve has also suffered. Paine's celery compound stores the blood vessels, even to their minutest capillaries with fresh blood, full of life, and builds up the worndown nerves, by bathing them, to their utmost filaments, in the rich nourishing stream.

Tired mothers, wern out by the ceasiess care of large famlies, and fathers worried by business and responsibility find just the refreshment to the nerves that they need so much. Overwrought brainworkers, teachers, scholars, young girls in stores and offices regain the sturdy appearance of health in a short time with a careful employment of this by using this powerful nourishing

Prosperous Middletown.

From the Newburgh Telegram.

Middletown real estate agents are agreed in saying that at no time in many years has there been such a demand for houses and apartments to rent as there has been in the past few months. There is not now a desirable property on the list of any agency, and there is a steady demand from out of town people who wish to make Middletown their home. Good!

Even money was wagered in New York, last night, on Hill's election. When the campaign first began the odds were three to one on Morton. A week or more ago they dropped to two to one, and now the odds have disappeared and it is dollar against dollar. Money talks and there is no sentiment in political wagers.

The business that Middletown's wool hat factories are doing is limited only by the capacity of their machinery to turn out hats and by their ability to secure skilled labor. Not in very many years have these fac tories had such a season as this has been. Many of the employes of these factories are Republicans, but they gladly acknowledge that Democratic tariff reform has set the hatting business on its feet. Free wool has done A Very Attractive Programme-Each for it what McKinley high duties falled to do. If they are wise they will think several times before voting for Morton and Odell, whose elec. tion means agitation for the restoration of McKinley duties on wool, for experience has shown that taxed wool means idle times in wool hat shops.

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation is sending into this district a circular calling attention to Joseph Dean's vote, last winter, against the bill to reduce the monopoly: The bill was a good one commended by the commercial organizations, boards of trade and the press of all the cities of the State. It had been made a party measure by the Republican caucus, but Mr. Dean kicked out of the party traces and voted against it, Mr. Dean was not always so independent. He voted for the Sheffield bill, a notoriously on charges of disorderly conduct, bad measure, which vested the Mayor | preferred by Mrs. Margaret Brown, of New York with autocratic powers, a neighbor. and sought to excuse his vote by saying that he was bound by caucus action. In Mr Dean's case caucus action seems to have been a now-you -see-it and-now-you-don't arrangement.

Between Tom Reed and Ben Butterworth on the one hand and Billy McKinley on the other, our Republican friends are getting badly mixed as to their political bearings. Reed, profiting by the maxim,— "revolutions never move backward," with courage which does him infinite credit, gives his audiences to understand that he is not looking forward to re-enactment of the McKinley tariff, in the event of his party winning control of the national government. Ben Butterworth, than whom the Republican party can boast no abler man, is even more outspoken, making no bones of saying the McKinley law was the millstone which weighted the party down to defeat, and there is no resurrection for it. As to McKinley, who is a feather weight intellectually compared with these men, he is assuring his hearers that the sole mission which the party has before it is to re enact his law, without which the country will never more bask in the sunlight of prosperity. Well may our Republican friends, bewildered by these antagonisms, exclaim, "under which king, Bezonian?"

TRACTION CO'S GOSHEN FRANCHISE

The Application Discussed at a Meeting of Goshen's Board of Trustees, Last Night-No Opposition to the Road's Entering the Village-No Formal Action, but the Company Told to Go On With Its Work.

From our Goshen Correspondent. The Board of Trustees held a public meeting, last night, to hear those in favor of and those opposed to the prices. granting of a franchise to the Miadletown-Goshen Traction Company to lay tracks on certain of the streets of the village. There were present, President Hock, and Trustees Schoonmaker, Kniffin and Horton, Trustee Welsh being absent.

President Hock, in calling the meeting to order, said that the Trustees expected to grant the Traction Company the right to enter the vil-

Mr. Virgil Sweezy said that he did not propose to allow the electric road to come by his shop if he could help

Mr. Floyd Reevs said he would like to have the petition read and the route it was proposed to take definitely indicated, as two routes were named in the application. Objections could be urged against one that would not hold as against the other.

Dr. Varcoe said he had no objection to the road coming by the lower route, but had very decided objections to granting it the right of way through Spring and Grand streets.

Capt. Rockwell said that either rcute would be acceptable to the Traction Company. It did not want, however, to be tied down to one route, for then it would be at the mercy of property owners and would have to pay any price that was asked might be necessary to buy.

Mr. Reevs and Dr. Varcoe took occasion to declare that they had no objection to the road entering the village and after some further discus-

Although the franchise was not formally granted, the Trustees gave the representatives of the Traction Company positively to understand that they could go ahead with the work on Spring street, as far as the point at which the routes diverge, assuring them that by the time it was necessary to make a decision, the franchise would be formally granted for one or both the routes.

OVERCOATS

Some one has said that buying overcoats is very much like buying eggs. When you get a good one it's a pleasure, but when you get a bad one, it's all-fired bad. It all depends upon the selection, and ofttimes you can't tell the difference between a good overcoat and a bad one until you wear it, or between a good egg and a bad one until you break it. But we have studied overceats until we can tell to a nicety a good overcoat from a bad one, and our experience is at your disposal. Our stock is composed entirely of good ones. That we will warrant. There are none cheaper, none better, none that will keep their color and wear longer than ours. If vou are disposed to doubt, ask your neighbor. who has been wearing one of our overcoats for 25c. NO MOFE BLOCKED CROSSINGS.

City Officials Take Steps to End a Great Nuisance.

Capt. Grier, under instructions from the Mayor, to-day, issued an order to the police instructing them to take the time of every train that blocks the crossings at West Main, James and North streets, between the hours of 12 m. and 1:30 p. m., and 6 and 7:30 p.m. The numbers of the engines and names of the conductors are to be included in the report.

This action has been made necessary by the habitual blocking of these crossings during the hours mentioned, and the fact that reports to headquarters of the Erie have been productive of meagre results.

SHAKING UP THE POLICE.

Mayor Stansbury Suspends Officers Sharpe and Wilson for Calling Each Other Hard Names-An Investigation of the Whole Department Proposed-A Lexow Show of Our Own in Pros-

Mayor Stansbury had an inning, last evening, as the head of municipal affairs in this city, and as a result Officers Sharpe and Wilson will enjoy a two weeks' outing.

The Mayor read in the Angus that Officer Skelton had been suspended for using indecent language, and as another case had been reported to him, he considered it a good time to take the matter in hand and purify "English as she is spoke" in the department.

Several weeks ago, while the whole force was enjoying its usual midnight supper at police headquarters, the members became involved in a discussion as to the proper amount of mileage to be charged for taking one or more prisoners to the Albany penitentlary. The discussion waxed hot and finally the officers above alluded to passed compliments to each other in language not tolerated in polite society. The intervention of their associates prevented blows, but the matter was related to the Mayor and, last evening, as the force was lined up for the usual evening inspection at 7 o'clock, the Mayor entered beadquarters.

He faced the men about and asked Officer Sharpe if he had used the language attributed to him and upon his acknowledgement of the corn, said: "You are suspended for two weeks."

The same question was put to Officer Wilson, who likewise admitted the offense and he too was sua pended for two weeks.

The Mayor then asked the Captain for the names of two men for appointment as specials during the time the suspended officers will be absent from the force.

Of course the suspension was made subject to the approval or disapproval of the Common Council, to whom the Mayor is required by the charter to present the charges against the suspended officers in writing. The Council may then appoint a committee to investigate the charges, and discipline, dismiss or reinstate the officers as they may determine from the evidence they may be able to procure in the matter.

The action of the Mayor has created no little comment and criticism about town, owing to the fact that the trouble between the suspended men occurred about four weeks ago. It is argued that the men should have been disciplined at that time, and that the matter has been allowed to run too long for official; notice at this late day. One of the members of the Common Council told an Angus reporter that he was glad that the Council would thus be given an opportunity to investigate the case, and intimated further that as an investigation was to be had, the committee would, in all probability, probe the entire department. Men who had been to him in private with stories of police corruption would be called upon to relate to the committee in public what they claimed to know to be the truth or else retract their statements made in private.

at looks as though a thorough overhauling of the department is one of the possibilities of the near future. If this is so the members of the force should hail the fact with delight, providing they are incorrupt and that the stories which are told of them are untrue. If on the other hand, they are true and can be substantiated there will doubtless be such a shaking up in the department as was never known in the history of the Middletown police force.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION. Not a Crime for a Railroad Employe to Sell His Time and Collect His

Judge Brown rendered an important decision, Saturday, in a Port

Jervis time buying case. Several years ago George J. Hubbard bought the time of John H. Farrelly, an Erie employe. Farrelly drew the money from the paymaster and did not pay it over. Hubbard sued Farrelly before Justice Cox and obtained judgment for sixty-two dollars, and Farrelly was arrested on a body execution and locked up over night. He paid the judgment and costs in the morning and then sued Hubbard for $10,000 damages for false imprisonment. The matter came before Judge Brown's on Farrelly's demurrer to Hubbard's answer to the complaint, and the Judge in his decision sustains the demurrer and holds that the action of Hubbard against Farrelly in the Justice's Court was not in tort, or for conversion, but an ordinary action on contract; under which an execution against the person could not legally issue. The question thus passed upon is of great importance to railroad employes, who have for years past, assigned their wages, as well as to timebuyers, who have proceeded for years on the theory that if an employe assigned his wages and collected and retained them he was guilty of a tort, for which his body could be taken under execution.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all theorgans of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near one base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal sord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is grevented by the injury from reaching the furnival portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement of the parangement parametry originating in the organ itself. A DETECTIVE'S YARN.

"It is not very often," said Detective Riley, "that a detective is forced to assume a disguise to get information, but sometimes it is absolutely necessary. The last time that I had to go into a den of thieves in a bogus character was a good many years ago, and I had a rather lively experience and enough of excitement to stand me until the end of my days.

"We received a report of the escape of a crook from the Charlestown prison, and from what the authorities there had been able to gather it was supposed that the convict had come to this city. They sent a description of the man, and the only thing that I saw was of any use was that on the man's right arm were the initials 'A. T.,' with a flag above and anchor below them in india ink. I looked over our records and found that we had there the pedigree of Abe Taylor, and he had the same marks on his right arm. The rest of the description that we had did not tally very closely with the one sent from Charlestown, but I thought that there was good ground for the belief that the escaped convict was Taylor, who was one of the most successful jail breakers in the country.

"In order to be certain of the identity of the convict I went to Charlestown. I found that the man had been convicted under the name of John Smith for the robbery of the Pittsfield bank, and the style of the work was in line with the business usually touched off by Taylor. I took a run over over to Pittsfield, got a description of the two men who had done the bank out of $160,000 and became convinced that the man who had been shot and arrested and who escaped was Abe Taylor, and that his partner was Jerry Connors.

"I knew that I was up against a stiff game, and on the train from Boston I laid out a plan which I thought would give me a show to get on the track of the men. Abe and Jerry I knew were partners with Petey Slade, who ran a notorious fence and dive in Washington street, near Canal, and I made up my mind that some time or other the pair of them would land in Slade's place. I decided that my strongest hold would be to get in with Slade and his gang on their own terms. I knew the risk I was taking, for the gang were about the toughest set of thugs and assassins in the city and would not hesitate to slit a man's wizen in a second upon the slightest provocation. I put up a scheme which I thought would beat their game, and it worked to the queen's tatse.

"When I reached the city, I had myself arrested for a fictitious crime and was tried and sent to the Blackwell's sland penitentiary in a perfectly regular way, with the assistance, of course, of Recorder Hackett. The warden in the penitentiary knew my game and aided me in carrying out the business. After I had been locked up a few days I made my escape from the island after dark. The next day the newspapers contained a thrilling account of my escape, and the story was that I dug my way out of my cell and swam across the river to this city. I must have had a terrible time, as the papers told it, but as a matter of fact I crossed the river in a boat, and the story was given out to make me solid in the work I had laid out to do.

"When I reached the city, it was dark, and I walked down to Slade's dive in my convict's rig, which had been soaked with water to carry out my scheme. I sent a boy into the dive to get Slade to come to me, and I told him the story of my escape and said that a thief who had started to get away with me, but had lost his nervo when it came to taking the swim, had told me that when we reached the city we could go to Slade's and put up until the thing

"Slade was very cautious. He felt my clothing and took me in a back room in the den and carefully examined the clothes and shoes to see if they were tho genuine convict's outfit. He was satisfied on that point, but was suspicious when I could not give him the name of my partner. I did not dare to fake a name, for Slade knew where every thief was who had been sent away that he ever did any business with. I told him that the man was known to me as Jack, and as Jack McCarthy, one of Slade's gang, happened to be on the island at the time my story was taken as being straight, and I was given a room on the second floor to bunk in. The next day Slade saw the story of my escape in the papers and became my friend at once.

"I must admit that I never got better treatment from any one than I did from Slade and the gang. He told them that I was all right, and they were glad to know a fellow who had the nerve to swim across the East river, where the tide runs like a mill race. I had to keep in the house all the time, and in case the police got on to mo in any way I was shown a way that I could escape by getting into an underground passage, which led to a sewer in the street. was fed like a fighting cock, and nothing turned up for about three weeks. Then early one morning, while I was sleeping, some one came into my room, and I heard a whispered consultation. There was a dim light in an adjoining room, and I could see four figures. My hair stood up on end, for I naturally thought that they were talking about me, and that I had been found out. I made up n y mind to give them as good a fight as there was in me, but after awhile the men went into the next room, and I heard them get into bed. In the Abe Taylor, Jerry Connors and Andy Cummings, the men I was after.

"My first idea was to connect with the outside and have the place pulled, and I would have done this if I had not learned that a scheme had been put up to turn off a savings bank in Newark. Cummings and Taylor had been a week in Newark planting the place. I was introduced to them by Slade, and Tayfor took me right away as a jail breaker after his own heart. I worked my cards as skillfully as I could and let the gang know that I was dying of dry rot. In the course of my business I had natu rally picked up every detail of the crook's trade and let Taylor know that I was anxious to get into some good bank lift. They waited about a week and then got word from Newark that the bank was ripe. I was delighted when Taylor told me I could go along, and I carried some of the jimmies.

"When we reached the Pennsylvania depot in Jersey city, we split up, and I went to a lavatory. I found a bootblack there, and I gave him a message for headquarters here and the chief of the Newark police, informing them of the attack that was to be made on the savings bank. The boy did his work right, and when we reached Newark I saw that we were picked up by some of the local police on the dead quiet. We went to the house of Red King and learned that a hole had been pushed through the wall of the building adjoining the bank. When we left King's to go to the bank, I saw three New York detectives on the way. I could not arrange for any signal and did not know when the attack would be made upon us.

"A dozen policemen were in the bank office waiting for us, and after we had got through the hole behind the safe and were getting ready to go to work the police rushed in on us. I dashed for the hole and fell on purpose so that I blocked it, and as every man was covered with a gun there was nething to do but surrender. I went in with the gang, and they did not learn who I was until the next day. The gang swore they would kill me, but haven't done it yet. Taylor and Connors were sent to Massachusetts on the Pittsfield affair, and the rest of the gang got a taste of Jersey justice."—New York Recorder.

Pennsylvania Railroad Time.

There was a time when folks used to set their watches by the town clock. Nowadays the railway timepiece seems to set the pace. There is so much traveling and so many have to eatch trains that men try to keep railroad time.

Few think, however, how difficult it is to keep that same railroad time straight. A bad watch or false time, even to the extent of a minute or two, might easily involve the destruction of a train and many lives. Conductor. and engineers not only must have good time keeping watches, but they must have a very accurate standard of time to go by. All clocks vary, but most clocks vary too much for railroad ac-

All over the great Pennsylvania system the clocks are regulated every 24 hours by telegraph from Altoona, where they get the standard time in seconds from Washington. The conductors and engineers running out of Philadelphia get their time from the clock in the rotunda at the Broad street station, the big one in the center just outside the waiting room, which occupies the same position in the new station that it did in the old. This clock, which cost over $400, is considered a wonder and in the old station seldom varied more than two seconds in the 24 hours. It has not been doing quite so well since taken down and put up again, but is improving and is so much better than any other clock known that nobody thinks of changing it, and in all probability in a little while, when it gets accustomed to its position and surroundings, it will come as near perfect accuracy as it ever has in its history.—Philadelphia Times.

The Kaiser's Favorite Dish. The German kaiser and kaisering usually breakfast and dine with 20 to 60 friends. They call that a "home" luncheon or dinner. The cuisine is half English and half German, and meats are always served in great variety, as the kaiser is a great meat eater. German champagne is furnished with soup, Moselle and Rhine wine follow and then Burgundy and Heidsick Royal with the

The latter is a special brand manu factured expressly for his majesty, who has always from 6,000 to 10,000 quarts of it in his cellars. The kaiser's favorite dish is Vienna roast beef, or pot roast. Whenever he visits at a house, his court marshal asks the host to place this dish on the menu. The kaiser's menu is always in German script except when foreigners are in vited who do not speak the language. The kaiser keeps no pastry cook. All pastries for the schloss are furnished by a caterer in Unter den Linden.

The Empress Frederick's cuisine has never excited the enthusiasm of gourmets. It is neither English nor French nor German. Her majesty is inordinately fond of cream, which is added to most dishes on her table. Purces and pastries are much liked.—New York

Breslau's Trick.

Breslau, a celebrated juggler, being at Canterbury with his troop, met with such bad success that they were almost starved. He repaired to the churchwardens and promised to give a night's takings to the poor if the parish would pay for hiring a room, etc. The charitable bait took, the benefit proved a bumper, and next morning the churchwardens waited upon the wizard to touch the receipts.

"I have already disposed of dem," said Breslan. "De profits were for de poor. I have kept my promise and given the money to my own people, who are de poorest in dis parish."

Sir, "exclainted the churchwardens, 'this is a trick.''

"I know it," replied the conjurer. "I live by my tricks."—Loudon Tit-Bits.

TALE OF A TERRAPIN. A Romance of an Artist Who Was Ful of it.

In a sequestered spot on the shores of Chesapeake bay Basil Beresford, a young artist, was sketching one day in the spring of 18..... The bright colorings were being cleverly applied to the canvas when all at once the artist ceased his work. The hoof of some animal could be heard striking the trampled turf. It was a muffled but also a quick sound which accompanied the rougher noise of breathing. Turning aside, Basil witnessed a curious sight. A fat terrapin, scampering o'er the lawn for dear life, was being hotly pursued by a sturdy fisherman and his daughter. The animal was soon captured and stored away in the well filled gamebag of his captors. Then Basil's attention was drawn as if by a magnet to Phyllis Marmaduke, daughter of Harold Marmaduke, the famous hunter who was the terror of the terrapin for miles around. Phyllis was a dream of love and beauty, with blue eyes, bright as the dew, and her golden hair hanging down her back. She stood breathing the air like a beautiful plant. Basil's work for that day was over. He could sketch no _nore. He could scarcely move. His blood began to frappe, and suddenly the truth flashed over him.

Basil Beresford was in love! CHAPTER IL

Ten-thirty. Basil stood 'neath a sturdy oak moving his pencils in a mechanical sort of way. Ever and anon he would leave his canvas. walk to the spot where Phyllis Marma duke had stood the day before and gaze into the grass as if searching for a treas-While in one of these moods who should stroll along but little Miss Marma-

"Have you lost something?" she asked.

"Yes, my pretty one, I have."
"What is it?"

"My heart."

"If you dare!" came in rough tones from behind a tree and Harold Marmaduke appeared on the scene. The old fisherman was not a man to be trifled with, and he upbraided the young lovers for their flirtation. Then he marched his daughter back to the house. Poor Basil was well nigh frantic. Seating himself on a log, he placed his hands to his forehead as if in deep thought. While in this reverie a terrible storm came up. The trees swayed in the flerce gusts of wind, the peaceful bay was turned into a thrashing sea, the thunder crashed, and myriads of terrapin ran hither and thither to points of safety. But Basil heeded them not. Suddenly a wild streak of lightning pierced one of the largest trees, and down came its tremendous weight upon the form of the poor artist, pinning him to the ground. His calls for aid were like whispers in the tempest, and Basil Bereaford was left to

CHAPTER III.

It was daybreak. The storm had subsided, and still Basil Beresford suffered in the terrible clutches of the heavy oak. He was about to faint away when he felt something crawl o'er his prostrate form. Stretching forth his hands, which were free, he caught a large terrapin. This was soon devoured, for the young artist had not tasted food for a day. Hours slipped away, but no helping hand came. The loneliness was only broken by a constant procession of terrapin across the form of Basil, who, fortunately enough, had fallen directly across the path used by the terrapin to go to the bay. Basil would select the best ones, slay them with his penknife and place them beside him for the next meal.

It was then that he thought of an old legend of Chesapeake's shores. It was said that if you point a diamond back toward a certain place and start the animal on its journey if will at some time arrive at the objective point. Quickly taking his penknife Basil, scratched a sketch of his deathtrap on the back of the hard shell of a well built diamond back, giving the exact location of the spot where he was lying. Then, pointing the terrapin toward the happy home of Phyllis Marmaduke, he started it on its journey.

Days, months and even years passed, but Basil was still in his terrible prison, sustaining his weary life by means of the terrapin and praying for death's release. CHAPTER IV.

The sun was shining.

Around the humble cottage of the fisherman's daughter her happy children were at play on the spacious veranda. It was just 15 years ago that very day that Basil Beresterd had illustrated his horrible misfortune by means of a penknife on the shell of a diamond back. All this while Phyllis had not been happy. She had buried two husbands, and her life was now a burden.

Presently the laughter of the children ceased. They gazed intently at the movements of a cool and collected terrapin as it clumsily clambered up the brownstone steps. It was Phyllis who picked up the belated rescue party and saw the message upon its back. With a shrick she fell to the floor senseless. When she regained her consciousness, she hastily summoned five of her strongest children, and they flew to the rescue. After a short run she found the prisoner, but at first she did not recognize him. He had wasted to almost nothing, and his long whiskers, now gray, were cruelly intwined about the limbs of "Heaven be praised!" she cried, and she and her children began to cut away the monstrous oak. Are you still full of the old love. Basil?"

Warrants Out for New Jersey Judges and Raifroad Magnates for Violating

Criminal charges were made, yesterday, in Paterson, N. J., against Judge Jonathan Dixon, Judge of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals, and Presiding Judge in the Passaic and Bergen county Circuit Courts; Charles R. Fitch, general superinten dent of the Eric Railroad; Reuben Wells, general superintendent of Rogers' Locomotive Works, of Paterson, Judge James Inglis, of the Passale County Court, and William C. DeGraw, hotel keeper and guide at Greenwood Lake.

The charges were made by Fish and Game Warden Charles A. Shriner, who accuses each of them of violating the fish and game laws of New Jersey on October 17. Two charges were made against Degraw.

The violation of law with which the party is charged is shooting ducks from DeGraw's steam launch. It has long been against the law of New York to shoot ducks or other wild fowl from vessels propelled by sails or steam, tut this law has only recently been enacted in New Jersey. The party is said to have cruised up and down the lake, killing many ducks. As soon as Game Warden Shriner heard of the matter he made complaint and had warrants issued.

INJURED IN A ROAD ACCIDENT Hugh Carroll, of Bullville, Found Unconscious by the Wayside,

Mr. Hugh Carroll, the Bullville blacksmith, was thrown from his wagon and badly injured near Searsville, last evening. His horse was found lying under A. R. Procuring lanterns a searching party was made up, which resulted in finding the overturned and broken wagon about a mile up the road toward Thompson Ridge. Mr. Carroll laid under the wagon unconscious. He was taken to Searsville. The extent of his injuries has not yet been learned.

MOST SERVICEABLE COL')R.

FASHION AND ECONOMY BOTH AP-PROVE BLACK CLOTHING.

An Easy Way of Home-Dyeing-Cotton Wool, silk and Feathers Readily Colored a Handsome Bluck-Use Only Diamond Dyes-Absolutely Fast Black

It is only within the last few years that it has been possible for an inexperienced person to dye a black that would not crock, fade or wash out. Even mill-dyed black goods were rarely absolutely fast.

The advent of three diamond dye fast blacks,-for wool, for cotton and for silk and feathers, -has changed all this. Now, with a ten cent package of one of these dyes, the first trial gives perfect success. The directions on the packages are so plain and simple that even a child can get better results than the experienced dyer could a few years ago.

The prevailing fashion for black stockings, feathers, gowns and cloaks, and the fact that anything can be colored with diamond dyes a black that will not crook or fade, explains their almost universal use.

The peculiar way in which the diamond dye fast blacks are made, gives them a greater superiority over all other methods of home dyeing.

There are some forty other colors of diamond dyes, each of which is thoroughly reliable, and as superior to imitations as sunlight is to the moonlight.

EVERY DOLLAR

you pay us for clothes represents so much value. If you buy a $4 suit or overcoat of us, it has got to give you that much value or we give you a new one. If you add a dollar to the four dollars and buy a $5 suit or overcoat, you get a dollar's worth more value. If you double your "V," and buy a $10 suit or overcoat you'll get one that's worth exactly twice as much as the $5 one, and you'll save $3 by buying it of us, as that is the amount which represents the middleman's profit.
